*The Heldrich Hotel

New Brunswick, NJ 08901*

"absolutely essential for all chief residents" (former attendee)

Individuals selected to be chief residents frequently possess natural ability to function in this role but often receive little or no formal training in management and leadership skills. Much of the stress and burnout commonly experienced by Chief Residents may be attributed to this lack of formal education and support.

This course is designed to prepare the new Chief Resident and was created in response to requests for in-depth training for Family Medicine Chief Residents as they begin their new responsibilities.

Faculty: The nationally renowned Patricia D. Williams, M.D. is a consultant in Human Interaction and Organization Development. She practiced Family Medicine and taught at the Maine-Dartmouth Family Practice Residency before training intensively at NTL Institute for Applied Behavioral Science. She is a member of NTL and on the faculty of Jefferson Medical College and American University.

Application and Schedule are attached.
Space is limited so register early!
